PLAT MAP

DEVELOPMENT

- Experiencing explosive growth, new housing cannot be built quickly enough to catch up with housing requirements and student housing demand near UC Berkeley
- Submarkets like Berkeley have become some of the most desirable regions in the world for investment + development

DEVELOPMENT STUDY AVAILABLE UPON REQUEST

PARKING POLICY

Most new housing projects in Berkeley will no longer have to build off-street parking, a move the city hopes will “more aggressively promote” alternative modes of transportation, such as walking and biking, and advance the city’s climate goals. Developers who want to build off-street parking will still be able to do so under the new rules, but the city did put limits in place about how much parking they can build in transit-rich areas without requesting special permission from the city.

SOUTHSIDE DISTRICT

This Southside District, adjacent to UC Berkeley, is home to thousands of students with increasing demand for housing. Telegraph Business Improvement District (TBID) is active hosting events and business support services. The updated Southside Plan is pending and focuses on increased housing density.
